BAD ECZEMA ON LEG

From Knee to Foot a Mass of Running Sores. Cured by Cuticura Remedies. Total Cost $1.75.

I have been afflicted with a sore limb, which the doctors called eczema. My limb from the knee to the foot was one mass of running sores. The doctors bandaged it every day for a week, and every time the bandage was removed a large scab would come off, and the blood pour down. I got one bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one box CUTICURA, and one cake CUTICURA SOAP, and they cured me. I told a lady who was similarly afflicted to use it, and it cured her also. I gratefully acknowledge that it was CUTICURA that cured me.
MRS. KATE BEARD, Orange Valley, N. J.

Inherited Scrofula

My nose was of a most pronounced crimson hue, the result of inherited scrofula. I suffered untellable mortification daily, and tried enough remedies to stock a drug store without deriving the slightest benefit. I tried the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and the most flattering results followed their use. I am all right now, and I cannot find encomiums enough to bestow upon what I know to be the greatest and grandest gifts given by science to man. Please accept the most sincere and grateful thanks of one who has suffered.

Christmas Tide.

Christmas for the Little Ones.

Christmas is a festival that belongs preeminently to the little folks, and no part of the Christmas festivities is so enjoyable to them as the ownership of a tree which they have helped to embellish, and which can be kept standing after it has been partly dismantled, and serves for a week or two as a continued pleasure. The Christmas trees of my childhood days, very simple affairs, were the source of untold joy for days beforehand as well as in the happy recollections that brightened the months that followed.

An evergreen was brought from the woods, planted in a box and the earth covered about the roots with mosses and lichen. In this soft bed were put toy sheep, while the boughs above were tied with pieces of gay ribbon, and if we had them a few tiny tapers were added; fortunate indeed we considered ourselves when we had a real bird's nest with red and blue and yellow sugar eggs to brighten it—to place in the crotch of the tree. Then there were cakes cut in the form of rabbits and birds, with beads stuck in for eyes, with perhaps a few oranges (this fruit was not cheap and plentiful then as now) here and there to keep company with the fancy paper cornucopias filled with candies that were suspended by long ribbon strings, and lastly and best of all were the gifts to each child with name of donor and proud recipient attached.

Sometimes a tree was not to be had, and then we were content to hang up our stockings, and the fun, though not so lasting, was quite as hilarious. The children of the neighborhood went from house to house to see what each one 'got,' compared notes, and were treated to cake and a little candy, or a handful of raisins.

The exchange of gifts with those outside the family circle was not so general as it is now, but these little gifts of bon bons and fruit were a pleasant equivalent. It is well to remind any boy or girl who is unhappy because he or she cannot give costly or elegant mementoes to friends, that, hallowed by the beautiful sentiment that underlies the custom, and which is the foundation of our Christmas joys, the simplest gift is sweet.

The main trouble is, in looking over a page of directions for the manufacture of Christmas gifts, we find so few that can be undertaken by children. The numerous tidies and picture "straws" and easels and plush frames and sachets there described call for a knowledge of embroidery or hand-painting or skilled needlework in thread or silk flosses which no one but an exceedingly ancient, unchildlike child possesses. The remarkable little girl who used to figure in the story-books, who gets her little stool and sits down by her mother's side and hemstitches and fells two or three yards of fine muslin every afternoon in a prim and decorous manner, while the bad little girls are out playing tag, could undoubtedly master this intricate work, but there is not a thing in that whole category of things that are mentioned as suitable and easy gifts for Christmas, which the average child can do. And yet these little ones want to help in making the holidays pleasant.

Have they ever heard of making a spice apple? Take a solid, smooth, well-shaped apple and stick it as full of cloves as it will hold. The little brown berries getting out between the points all over it, and the delightful odor escaping from this aromatic ball will cause grandma and grandpa to declare it is the nicest present which has fallen to their share.

Then there are the little oblong [oval?—Eds.] gourds that look exactly like goose eggs. Cut off an inch at one end, line the inside with anything pretty, stick in three little slim sticks to serve as feet at the opposite end, paint the outside a tender blue or a delicate pink or green, (though it is pretty to let it remain white) paste a picture on one side and you have the cunningest little match receiver you ever saw.

A bouquet of peacock feathers, spread so that the brilliant green and golden eyes may show, and tied with a rich ribbon bow, is also a beautiful gift.—GARRY OWEN GAINES in Country Gentleman.

A PRETTY TRIFLE.—A corn-cob thermometer is useful and effective. Get a bright red or yellow ear—any farmer or grain dealer will give you some to choose from—then remove two rows of the kernels, leaving a place the exact size of a small thermometer, which you can buy at any shop where they sell materials for fancy work. Tie the stem with a bow of ribbon to match and you have another present ready.—Seattle Press.

Forbearance of Christ.

What tenderness was ever shown by our Lord! How patiently he bore with his disciples in their slowness to understand and, in their doubts and mistakes! While men would have stoned a transgressor He spoke words of hope. When Peter denied Him He made sure that he especially should be told of His resurrection. So all His earthly life told of His compassion and forbearance, and knowing that He is "the same yesterday, to-day and forever" we may have hope that in our infirmities and failures we shall find the same tenderness manifested.

A DEAR little child, about two and a half years old, was lying in bed one morning looking in her mother's face, who in turn was gazing fondly on the child. Neither spoke for a while, when the little one smilingly said, "You'se talking to me, mamma?" "No, darling," said her mother; "I did not say anything." She quickly replied, "Yes, mamma, you is talking to me with your eyes, and you say, 'O, you dear little girl, how I do love you!'"

"WILLIE," said his father as he came home at night, "have you been a good boy?" "Did you ask mamma?" said Willie doubtfully. "Don't you know?" inquired his father. "Well, it's this way," explained Willie. "Ma's ideas and mine differ as to what is being bad, and I don't want to go back on anything she might say."

"INASMUCH."

You say that you want a meetin'-house for the boys in the gulch up there,
And a Sunday school with pictur' books?
Well, put me down for a share.
I believe in little children; it's as nice to hear them read
As to wander 'round the ranch at noon and see the cattle feed.
And I believe in preachin', too—by men for
preachin' born,
Who let alone the husks of creed, and measure
out the corn.
The pulpit's but a manger where the pews
are gospel fed;
And they say 'twas to a manger that the star
of glory led,
So I'll subscribe a dollar toward the manger
and the stalls;
I always give the best I've got whenever my pardner calls.
And, stranger, let me tell you, I'm beginning to suspect
That all the world are partners, whatever their creed or sect;
That life is a kind of pilgrimage, a sort of Jericho road,
And kindness to one's fellow's the sweetest
law in the code.
No matter about the 'nitials; from a farmer
you understand,
Who's generally had to play it alone from rather an or'nary hand.
I've never struck it rich, for farming, you
see, is slow,
And whenever the crops are fairly good the prices are always low.
A dollar isn't very much, but it helps to count the same;
The lowest trump supports the ace and sometimes wins the game.
It assists a fellow's praying when he's down upon his knees—
"Inasmuch as you have done it to one of the least of these."
I know the verses, stranger, so you needn't
stop to quote;
It's a different thing to know them or to say
them off by rote.
I'll tell you where I learned them if you'll
step in from the rain;
'Twas down in 'Fri-co, years ago, had been
there hauling grain;
It was near the city limits, on the Sacramento
pike,
Where stores and sheds are rather mixed,
and shanties scatterin' like.
Not the likeliest place to be in, I remember
the saloon,
With grocery, market, baker shop and barrooms
all in one
And this made up the picture—my hair was not then gray,
But everything still seems as real as if
'twere yesterday.
A little girl with haggard face stood at the counter there,
Not more than ten or twelve at most, but
worn with grief and care;
And her voice was kind of raspy, like a sort of chronic cold—
Just the tone you find in children who are prematurely old
She said: "Two bits for bread and tea, Ma
hasn't much to eat;
She hopes next week to work again, and buy us all some meat.
We've been half starved all winter, but spring will soon be here,
And she tells us keep up courage, for God is always near."
Just then a dozen men came in; the boy was called away
To shake the spotted cubes for drinks, as forty-niners say.
I never heard from human lips such oaths and curses loud
As rose above the glasses of that crazed and reckless crowd.
But the poor, tired girl sat waiting, lost at last to revels deep,
On a keg beside a barrel in the corner fast asleep.
Well, I stood there, sort of waiting, until some one at the bar
Said "Hello! I say, stranger, what have you over thar?"
The boy then told her story, and that crew,
so fierce and wild,
Grew intent and seemed to listen to the breathing of the child.
The glasses were all lowered. Said the dealer
"Boys, see here;
All day we've been pouring whiskey, drinking deep our Christmas cheer.
Here's two dollars—I've got feelings which are not entirely dead—
For this little girl and mother suffering for the want of bread."
"Here's a dollar." "Here's another," and
they all chipped in their share;
And they planked the ringing metal down
upon the counter there.
Then the spokesman took a golden double
eagle from his belt,
Softly stepped from bar to counter and beside
the sleeper knelt;
Took the "two bits" from her fingers, changed
her silver piece for gold.
"See there, boys; the girl is dreaming."
Down her cheeks the teardrops rolled.
One by one the swarthy miners passed in silence to the street.
Gently we awoke the sleeper, but she started to her feet
With a dazed and strange expression, saying
"Oh, I thought 'twas true!
Ma was well, and we were happy; round
our doorstone roses grew.
We had everything we wanted, food enough,
and clothes to wear;
And my hand burns where an angel touched it soft with fingers fair."
As she looked, and saw the money in her fingers glistening bright,
"Well, now, ma has long been praying, but she won't believe me quite.
How you've sent 'way up to heaven, where the golden treasures are,
And have also got an angel clerking at your grocery bar."
That's a Christmas story, stranger, which I thought you'd like to hear;
True to fact and human nature, pointing out one's duty clear.
Hence to matters of subscription you will see that I'm alive;
Just mark off that dollar, stranger; I think I'll make it five.

SHE was a bright girl and they were at the season's last game of baseball. She had won his enthusiastic heart by understanding the game right off, and he loved her more than if she had been only his sister.

"It reminds me of the household," he said. "The plate, the batter, the fowls and the flies, etc."

"And it reminds me of marriage," she added, "First, the diamond, where they are engaged, then the struggles and the hits, then the men going out and finally the difficulty they have in getting home."

And he sat and thought and thought.

The King's Feast in Rufus's Hall.

BY REV. HENRY AUGUSTUS ADAMS.

In the good old days of merry England the Yule-tide festivities greatly surpassed our Christmas celebrations in splendor.

We have all read about the wild ringing of the bells, the troups of singers caroling in the crisp night air their quaint old Christmas ballads; about the sumptuous feasting, the ceremony of bringing in the boar's head, and the mystic spell of the mistletoe bough.

But now let me show you how the glad Christmas merry-making went on in the king's palace.

Close by Westminster Abbey, where all of the English sovereigns are crowned, and where many of them lie buried, there stands a grand old building known as Westminster Hall. It now forms a part of the Parliament Houses; but it is nearly five hundred years older than any other part of the buildings

In the olden times the king's palace was at Westminster, and it was for this reason that William Rufus, the son of William the Conqueror, here built his great banqueting hall in the year 1097, which was known as "Rufus's Roaring Hall," and later, "Westminster Hall."

It is an immense stone-floored room stretching, when you stand in its centre, away from you, above you, around you on every side, until you feel quite lost in wonder.

The old roof, with its great rafters of timber, reaching, unsupported by pillars, entirely over the hall, is the second largest in the world.

What strange sights that old roof has echoed through those vaults!

If we could have peeped in there on Christmas night six hundred and seventy years ago, we should have seen the old hall crowded with knights and ladies, pages, courtiers and minstrels. Down the center stretched the great oaken table, groaning with good things; while at the upper end, in all his royal attire, sat the king. And the merry laugh went 'round, and the joy was unbounded; and so was the king's bounty—for the poor, as well as the rich, had enough and to spare that night.

And yet this king was not a good king: King John, the brother of Richard the lion-hearted, was a very bad man.

King Henry III used to have his great Christmas dinner in Rufus's Roaring Hall; and once, when he himself was at his other palace, at Winchester, he did not forget the poor, but directed his treasurer to fill the great hall for one week from Christmas day with poor people, and feast them there.

The next king, Edward I., continued the Christmas feasting at Westminster Hall. His son—who was the first Prince of Wales—used to enjoy these merry times.

King Edward III was called a "right royal provider of Christmas cheer." If this meant that he was even more generous than his father, lavish, indeed, must those feasts have been. In fact, we still read of the rich "soups of the brawn of capons;" of blanc manges, tarts and pies, and countless other good things, in the preparation of which his cooks excelled. But the years 1358 and 1362 were especially blessed with festivities. The Christmas dinner in Rufus's Hall, on the former of these two years, was graced by the presence of three great kings. At the end sat the English monarch, with his crown upon his head; on his right, the captive King of France; on his left, King David of Scotland.

At the next great feast these were joined by the King of Cyprus. The cooks did their best; jellies of all colors, and in all shapes, of flowers, trees, beasts, fruit, fish and fowl; confections of cinnamon and ginger, and "grains of paradise," for desert; these, and other delicacies, did the king's grace (and the king's cooks) provide.

But still greater feasts were coming; for when King Richard II. ascended the throne he outdid all his predecessors in his Christmas hospitality.

The old hall had fallen into a very dilapidated state, and Richard rebuilt it, and there it stands to-day just as he finished it.

An old chronicler tells us, that when the king completed the new hall he determined to give "a house warming;" from all accounts it must have been a heart-warming to many a poor soul.

Two thousand cooks prepared the feast, which ten thousand of the king's subjects were bidden to enjoy. The good king was attired in cloth-of-gold garnished with pearls and precious stones.

The feasting, hospitality, and rejoicing continued through the entire week. It was a season of universal merriment and good will.

There is no palace at Westminster now, and there are no more banquets in the old hall. It was not until the times of Good Queen Bess that the Westminster celebrations came to an end. Each king strove to be merrier and more charitable than the last; but times have changed. This year, when the deep-toned Westminster clock peals out the advent of the glad Christmas day, it is dark in the banqueting hall. There are shadows only on the old, old roof; shadows on the old stone floor. The old kings are sleeping in the neighboring abbey. The voices of the minstrels are no longer heard.

Has the world forgotten that Christ was born? Have kings forgotten the poor? No. In every home there is to be a feast. The poor have Christ and Christmas in their own houses now. In the morning the church bells will ring. Millions of happy voices will call, "Merry Christmas!" Twice as many million twinkling eyes will peer into half as many million twinkling stockings. No need for kings and cooks to make us happy!—St. Nicholas.

TIGHT-LACING ought to be discouraged, on every account. It is not only unhealthy, but it destroys beauty in the long run; for it causes high shoulders, varicose veins, and a red nose. Surely such penalties—to say nothing of heart disease, spinal curvature, and worse—ought to deter either maids or matrons from unduly compressing their waists. No adult woman's waist ought to measure less in circumference than twenty-four inches at the smallest, and even this is permissible to slender figures only. The rule of beauty is that the waist should be twice the size of the throat. Therefore, if the throat measures twelve and a half inches, round the waist should measure twenty-five. The statute of the "Venus de Medici," the acknowledged type of beauty, has a waist of twenty-seven inches, the height of the figure being only five feet two inches

Tariff Talk That Won.

How. Lew. Stewart, a Democrat, was elected to Congress in an Illinois district 8000 Republican, is detailed by a Chicago paper. The Democrats had nobody willing to run, when Stewart agreed to accept the candidacy if allowed to have his own way, one of the conditions being that no Democratic speaker should be sent into the district. He then disappeared; but a week later was heard of at work. There were no brass bands; no big meetings. Indeed, there was no excitement, and none of the Democratic leaders knew what Stewart was doing. But he was elected, and this was the way he got it.

"He first went to Chicago to a large, reliable, and well-known wholesale house, where he purchased a half dozen packing trunks full of ordinary goods of all descriptions that are used by every family. On each of the articles he had the price paid marked. Then he had the price before the McKinley bill passed marked on each, and thirdly, he had the firm mark on the goods what the prices would be without any tariff. Besides this he had thousands of cards printed showing former prices and prices under the McKinley bill on all goods of every-day use.

"With this paraphernalia he went to every county and every little town in the district. He would go to the school-houses in each neighborhood and spread his goods out to be examined by the people. He made no set speeches, but would simply walk around among the assembled crowds and explain the burdens imposed upon them by the McKinley bill, at the same time practically illustrating what he said with his stock of goods. It simply set the people wild. They went home and talked about it. There was no getting around the fact that the McKinley bill makes the farmer pay more for everything he uses and compells him to sell his products at the same old prices. The people couldn't stand it, and when election day arrived they voted for Stewart. His election was a surprise to every Democrat in the district. His originality did it."

TALK TARIFF.—The farmer, the mechanic and the laborer has been reading and thinking for himself on the Tariff question, as evidenced by the recent tidal wave, but let him continue to read and think, let him study the question and discuss it for two years more, and we feel sure that we can anticipate his verdict. The Democratic party is the only party that is entirely right on the tariff subject.

"REPEAL THE MCKINLEY BILL."—The millionaire meat packer, Philip D. Armour, is a decided Republican, but his emphatic advice, expressed almost daily, is, "repeal the McKinley bill!" Let the present Congress do this one thing and adjourn, he insists, "if they don't the Republican party is gone forever." The tyrant Reed and supporters McKinley and Harrison, not as wise as Armour, declare it must not be touched. The PEOPLE will come to their own after awhile.

THE Christmas number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine will have 228 illustrations; 123 cartoons from the brush of Dan. Beard, the famous artist who has contributed so much to the popularity of Mark Twain's books. The cartoons will appear at the bottom of each page, and the tops and sides will be graced with illustrations of "Christmas During the Eighteen Centuries of the Christmas Era." One hundred thousand copies of the Christmas issue are being printed.

"Is the third party movement now suggested a genuine movement or is it a device of politicians of the Ingalls [Kansas] school to divide and conquer? This will have to be seriously considered by the Alliance."—Baltimore Sun.

All third parties have had short lives in this country—American, Greenback, Readjuster and others of less note. What the farmers could accomplish by themselves may be spoiled by too many "side shows," and there are offerings in plenty.

POURING THE MONEY INTO THE SEA.—The Sun says: The effect of the recent efforts of the Secretary of the Treasury to help Wall street out of its troubles is seen in a new demand on Mr. Windom to "save the country." There is again a stringency and financial uneasiness in monetary circles which the treasury is asked to relieve by further purchases of bonds at exaggerated prices. During the five months of the present fiscal year from seventy-five to eighty millions have been obligingly thrown into Wall street to make money easy. As fast as it has been paid out it has gone, it appears, into the hoards of persons who distrust the existing situation and wish to keep plenty of cash on hand for contingencies. It has not gone into circulation, nor has it swelled the volume of funds available for business, or for loans on stock collateral. So far as speculation is concerned, the outpourings of the treasury might as well, it seems, have been dumped into the sea.

MR. PARNELL arrived in Dublin Wednesday and was received enthusiastically by the people of that city, a number of whom unharnessed the horse from his cab and pulled the vehicle through the streets. Subsequently, Mr. Parnell went to the office of the newspaper United Ireland, of which it is said he is the largest stock-holder, and ordered the sheriff to seize the plant of the company and eject the editors, which things were done only after a lively scrimmage with the employes

THE Republican party is no longer a party. It is a machine. Its object is not the public welfare nor the advocacy of measures for the good of the country. Its aim and end is to maintain itself in power by fair means or foul. Its object is patronage and plunder. * Young men with honorable ambition, with probity and brains and a conscience, cannot find a place in such a party. They must surrender their manhood or their ambition, and rather than do this, rather than wear the mark of the beast upon their foreheads, they abandon the party in which they have been reared.—Hagerstown Mail.

Does Senator Hoar Hear?

Nero is recorded as enjoying the strains of his fiddle while Rome was burning, and Senator Hoar seems to be determined that the history of Rome's sorrow under one of her most despotic and profligate Emperors shall be figuratively repeated in himself.

When the finance, commerce, industry and trade of the whole country are paralyzed by general distrust, and when Congress should cast aside all other questions to consider the wisest measures to inspire general confidence in business channels, Senator Hoar would quicken and magnify distrust by deliberately assailing the sectional tranquility of the country.

There is not an embarrassed business man in the North, Republican or Democrat, who does not profoundly deplore the revival of the effort to enact the Force Election bill There is not one of the many thousands in the North interested in the development of Southern industries, nor one of the many tens of thousands who are looking for restored commerce and trade between the North and South, who does not regard the efforts of Senator Hoar to give the color of law to wholesale election frauds, as destructive of all business trust.

It was not expected that one so blinded by partisan madness as is Senator Hoar on the Force Election policy would hearken to the earnest protests of business men of all parties and sections; but will he not heed the emphatic admonitions of Massachusetts? He appealed to his State to vindicate his policy of Force, and the people of the Bay State, once Republican by more than a two-thirds vote, answered by the election of a Democratic Governor by many thousands, and by the election of the first Democratic delegation in Congress of modern times.

Even this revolutionary admonition of Massachusetts has failed to impress Senator Hoar, and now comes the emphatic call of Boston for a halt in sectional madness. One year ago the Republicans elected the Mayor of Boston by 5,460 majority; on Tuesday last, when Senator Hoar was insolently defying the appeals of patriotic statesmanship for peace to revive business confidence, the people of Boston elected a Democratic Mayor by 12,319 majority and swept both branches of the Municipal Councils. Does Senator Hoar hear?—Phila. Times.

The Sultan at Home.

HOUSEKEEPING ON A GIGANTIC SCALE, AND HOW HE EATS.

It is estimated that over 6,000 persons are fed daily at his Dolman Bagtche palace when the sultan is there. One who claims to be well informed gives in the Leisure Hour a graphic picture of the sultan's housekeeping. He admits that it is clear that there is good executive ability in the management of this enormous household, for there is scarcely ever a jar or hitch, even under the impulse of the most untimely demands. Every different department is under the control of a person who is directly responsible for that, and he has a corps of servants and slaves under his orders, who obey him only, and he is subject to the treasurer of the household. Women have no voice whatever in the management of anything in any department. Their sole occupation is to wait upon their respective mistresses or to serve the sultan in some specified capacity, and the labor about the palace is so subdivided that no one works very hard except the lord high chamberlain and treasurer of the household.

The treasurer of the household has the burden of the housekeeping on his burly shoulders, and has an organized force of buyers, who are each charged with the purchase of certain supplies for their individual departments, each paying his helpers, servants and slaves. One man is charged with the duty of supplying all the fish, and, as to furnish fish for at least 6,000 persons is no light undertaking in a place where there are no great markets such as there are in all large cities, he has about 20 men to scour the various small markets and buy of the fishermen, and each of these men has two others to carry the fish they buy.

About 10 tons of fish a week are required. There are nearly 18,000 pounds of bread eaten daily, for the Turks are large bread eaters, and this is all baked in the enormous ovens situated at some distance from the palace. The food for the sultan is cooked by one man and his aids, and no others touch it. It is cooked in silver vessels, and when done each kettle is sealed by a slip of paper and a stamp, and this is broken in the presence of the sultan by the high chamberlain, who takes one spoonful of each separate kettle before the sultan tastes it. This is to guard against poison. The food is almost always served up to the sultan in the same vessels in which it is cooked, and these are often of gold, but when served in vessels of baser metal the kettle is set into a rich golden bell-shaped holder, the handle of which is held by a slave while the sultan eats. The sultan never uses a plate. He takes all his food direct from the little kettles, and never uses a table and rarely a knife or fork—a spoon, his bread, a pancake or fingers are found far handier.

Dishonest Men Value Honesty

A young man came one day with a case of conscience. He was a corresponding clerk in a flourishing house of business. His employers had begun to direct him to write letters to customers containing statements which he knew to be false. He had objected, and they said:

"We are responsible for these statements; it is nothing to you whether they are true or false."

I said to him:

"Do they sign the letters, or ask you to write them in your own name?"

As soon as the question left my lips, I saw that if there was a difference, both would be wrong, and I hastened to tell him so. He said:

"I have to sign them with my name, pro. Blank." I said:

"Your case is perfectly clear; you must decline to do it."

He said:

"Then I shall be dismissed;" and, after a pause, "I have a wife and family."

I met him some days after.

"Well, Mr. ——," I said, "how are you getting on now?"

He replied:

"I am still in my situation. I had an interview with the partners, and I told them I would not write letters I knew to be untrue. They were very angry, and I expected to receive notice, but I have not received it yet."

Months passed and he remained in his situation. After a while he called on me and I saw by his face something had happened.

"Well, Mr. ——," I said, "have you had your dismissal?"

"No," he said, "I have not," and smiled.

"What then?"

"What then?"

"A very confidential post in their service, with a higher salary, has fallen vacant, and they have put me into it."

On second thought these unprincipled men had come to the conclusion that a clerk who would not deceive a customer would not deceive them and was too valuable to be lost.

Prescription for a Balky Mule.

BILL "CHEWED HIS EAR" AND THE REBELS WERE OUTDISTANCED.

Several veterans of the late war were telling of their experience at Roundout, N. Y., a few days ago. One related the following amusing incident:

"Our regiment was in camp at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and one day a comrade and I secured permission to pay a visit to a farm house some distance away, where we knew there was poultry. We rode horses and had some money in our pockets to purchase what chickens and turkeys we desired, for on this occasion we had made up our minds to forego foraging, but later circumstances arose that quickly made us forget our good resolution. A short distance from the farm-house was a grass-field, into which we turned our horses to graze at will.

"We then proceeded to the residence on foot and met the farmer on an old-fashioned porch that ran the whole front of the quaint farm house. I told him we had come to barter for some chickens and turkeys. This proposition seemed to fire his southern blood. He swore he'd rather see every fowl on his premises rot before he would sell them to any Yankee for one hundred times their weight in gold. That settled it with us. Our northern blood had reached as high a boiling point as that of the old southerner. We could not stand such an insult, and went straightway to the barn, where a fine lot of fowls were pecking grain.

"It did not take us long to tie the legs of a goodly number of chickens and turkeys. As I was in the act of tying up the legs of a proud gobbler I looked up, and to my dismay I saw coming up the lane a small company of rebel cavalry. I took in the situation at a glance. I knew we had not time to reach our horses, and to escape on foot was impossible. In the barn yard were two sleek mules. Throwing my string of poultry over the back of one and jumping astride the animal, I shouted to Bill—that was the first name of my comrade—to follow my example. He did so and I took the lead for camp. The mule I was on had taken but a few jumps when I heard Bill shout:

"'Great thunder! He's balked, Jim.'

"I looked around, and sure enough the mule had balked. The Johnnies were close at hand, and I shouted back: 'Crawl on his neck, Bill, and chew his ear.'

"Bill lost no time in trying the experiment. He got the end of one of the animal's long ears into his mouth and began operations. The mule gave a squeal like that of a stuck pig and rushed after its mate which I was riding on, for dear life. Suddenly I saw something loom up and pass you me. It was Bill and his mule. Bill's teeth were embedded in the animal's ear, and blood trickled down the side of its head. Bill was all humped up on the back of his old steed, and presented a most ludicrous sight. The turkeys flapped their wings and the chickens made a terrible clatter, which only served to make the mule go faster. I heard the Johnnies behind us laugh. They fired at us but we were not hit. I am sure they could not have hit Bill, for he was being carried along by a great speed.

"Through the picket line of our regiment and on through camp went Bill's mule, the poultry bobbing up and down at every jump. As soon as I knew we were out of reach of the enemy I gathered all my lung power and shouted:

"'Let go the mule's ear, Bill; we're safe.'

"Bill heard me and let go. He finally succeeded in stopping the mule, whose sides went in and out like a big bellows. An examination showed that Bill had chewed over half the mule's ear off. Bill allowed it was the toughest bit of meat he had ever tackled, but that night he got square on roast turkey and chicken. We lost two of the best horses in our camp."

A Monster Machine.

THE BIGGEST STATIONARY ENGINE IN THE WORLD.

Allentown, Dec. 7.—At the Friedensville zinc mines, six miles south of Allentown, there is in operation the largest stationary engine in the world. During the past few months it has pumped dry by underground drainage nearly every ore pit, spring and small stream within a radius of five miles.

The engine is known as the "President," is of 5,000 horse power and is run by sixteen boilers. At each revolution of its ponderous wheels a small stream is thrown out, the number of gallons raised every minute being 17,500. The driving wheels are 35 feet in diameter and weigh 40 tons each. The sweep-rod is 40 feet long. The cylinder is 110 inches in diameter, while the piston-rod is 18 inches in diameter and makes a 10-foot stroke.

The engine has a ballast box capable of holding sixty tons, and to feed the boilers twenty-eight tons of coal are required daily. On the engine is the largest nut in the world. It is hexagonal in shape and weighs 1,660 pounds. To tighten or loosen this nut twenty men are required, while the wrench that fits it is twenty feet long. The masonry on which the engine rests is 108 feet deep, some of the foundation stones weighing five tons. The engine operates four pumps, three of which are thirty inches in diameter and the fourth twenty-two inches.

"I suffered for more than eight months from a severe cough accompanied with hemorrhage of the lungs and the expectoration of matter. The physicians gave me up, but my druggist prevailed on me to try

"A few years ago I took a very bad cold, which settled on my lungs. I had night sweats, a racking cough, and great soreness. My doctor's medicine did me no good. I tried many remedies, but received no benefit, everybody despaired of my recovery. I was advised to use Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, as a last resort, did so. From the first dose I obtained relief, and, after using two bottles of it, was completely restored to health."—F. Adams, New Gretna, N. J.

Our Washington Letter

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1890.

Editor of the Compiler: Questions affecting the financial condition of the country are at present absorbing almost the entire attention of Congress, and the administration has at last become convinced that something must be done. Opinions differ as to what convinced Mr. Harrison and his cabinet, but it is more than probable that the action of Senator Plumb, who, in introducing a bill to replace the retired circulation of national banks and providing for the free coinage of silver, stated that it was his intention, if the Federal Election bill was not speedily disposed of, to move that it be laid aside and his bill and others relating to financial matters be considered, in order that something might be done to meet the just expectations of the people, had a great deal to do with it. It is an open secret here that the Republicans who believe with Senator Plumb—there are lots of 'em—have become greatly dissatisfied at what they consider the waste of valuable time, which the debate on the election bill has taken up, and there have been mysterious hints about their forming a combination with the Democrats for the purpose of passing a free coinage bill.

All this has had an alarming effect upon Mr. Harrison and those Republicans who have appeared to consider the election bill more important than financial legislation. The fact of the matter is that at least three fifths of Congress, irrespective of party, have become converted to the ideas of the Farmers' Alliance, as far as financial matters are concerned.

There is an evident desire on the part of the administration to prevent the adoption of a free coinage bill by Congress, by offering something in the place of it, in fact several somethings. One of which is the immediate purchase by the Government of the thirteen million ounces of silver bullion now stored in various sections of the United States. If Congress gets an opportunity it will certainly authorize this purchase, as the money thus put in circulation would greatly help the money market, but this measure will not be accepted as a substitute for free coinage by the silver men, who are fully aware of their strength in Congress.

IT comes out that the main trouble with the Indians arises from want of rations, many of them having been for some time in a starving condition. This is too bad in a Christian land of plenty. If President Harrison would weed out a lot of his thieving Indian agents there would be no threatened hostilities in the Indian country to-day. If Cleveland only had a whack at the rascals.

THE State Grange met at Harrisburg, in the hall of the House, on Tuesday, Worthy Master Rhone and Secretary Thomas at their posts. Over seven hundred delegates attended. Mr. Rhone said that unusual success had crowned the efforts of the Grangers during the year: 86 new granges, 24 reorganized, and 6,000 new members. He deplored the efforts made by those having selfish motives to disrupt the organization.

The Maryland State Grange, two hundred strong, met in Baltimore the same day. National Grange Lecturer Whitehead, of New Jersey, attended and made a speech, closing with the remark:

"We have all read the proceedings of the Ocala convention, and we are in sympathy with the farmers who assembled there to formulate plans to better their condition. But when I saw that T. V. Powderly was invited to participate in that convention I felt that the interests of the farmers would be jeopardized. When a man who declares himself an advocate of Henry George's theory of a single tax, and that on land alone, he cannot benefit us. I cannot believe that the Alliance will be a permanent institution when it admits into its deliberations a man who would tax the land of the farmer and take it off the mansion of the millionaire. I am sorry to see so many of our class going astray—sorry to see them forming such entangling alliances that can only result in injury and ruin to them."

The sub-treasury scheme was not adopted. The most important speech on the question was that of President Hall, of the Missouri Alliance, who said:

"I am uncompromisingly opposed to this scheme, and for the following reasons: First, it is in violation of the constitution of the United States; second, it is subversive of and directly opposed to the constitution, principles and demands of our own order; third, it is unjust and inequitable; fourth, it is very extravagant; fifth, it would bring financial ruin to the farmers of our entire country and to all other classes of business; sixth, it will have and is now having the effect of drawing the minds of farmers and other laborers of our country from the greatest curse of the age, class legislation, and, if adopted, will commit us to that principle which will fasten these curses upon us for all time."

INSIDE FACTS REGARDING DELAMATER.—A Philadelphia special to the Pittsburg Post gives some inside facts relating to Senator Delamater, and some of his victims threaten that unless hush money is forthcoming some stalling revelations will be made in regard to the late campaign. The following is an extract from the special referred to:

Republican politicians of Philadelphia are beginning indignantly to resent the statement that Senator Delamater's financial misfortunes are in consequence of campaign expenses paid out of his own funds. "He has not spent a dollar in politics since the day of his nomination," a leading Republican said to a reporter to-day. "Even his personal expenses during the campaign were paid by the State Committee, and he neglected to pay his share toward making up the fund to pay them. As to the $50,000 paid to the Finance Company of Philadelphia to make up his share of the Macfarlane shortage of $200,000, not a cent of it came from Delamater's own purse, whatever may have been the source of payment of the $50,000 in indorsement of Macfarlane's notes, which swelled the hush money fund to $90,000, and permitted Delamater to win a nomination that he never could have got if his connection with Macfarlane had come out in April.

A CONGRESSIONAL DUTY.—"From the moment of assembling, Congress should devote itself to the establishment of a wide system of trade reciprocity," says the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. In other words, while still swearing that it is a rat and not a mouse, the Republican party should undo as far as possible what it has done. New Oxford Jottings.

Quite cool, and in fact, cold weather has been our portion lately, the rough winds have blown the leaves from the trees, robbing them of their autumnal beauty and their bare branches are suggestive of the bleak winter with its chilling winds, heavy frosts, snow and ice. Warm bright fires will do much to atone for the cheerless aspect of things without, however, and the pleasant winter holidays are bright days to look forward to in the otherwise rather somber season.

We are glad to see that the spirit of improvement is manifested by some of our citizens. Mr. John S. Weaver has a new brick dwelling under roof, and Mr. Elias Kellenberger has the foundation almost ready for a new house on Hanover street.

The different Sunday Schools are now preparing for their annual Christmas exercises, and judging from the preliminary arrangements, they will render fine programs.

Jacob Steel, of Nicholson township, Fayette county, is probably the oldest man that votes in this or any other State. At the last election he was 106 years old and voted for Pattison. He voted for Madison and every Democratic candidate for the Presidency from that down to Cleveland. He was married in 1812 and is a hearty, active man yet.

Now that New Oxford is earnestly engaged in seeking to advance her interests there are a number of things she should do if she desires to attain that purpose. She should have factories, a few of which she was about grasping, but finally fell through, and have located at other places. So two opportunities failed, which could have been secured, had it not been for a few persons. Had we been successful it would have induced more people to locate here. There were other matters of great importance and such that were necessary for the future development of the town, but selfishness has destroyed them all. O.

"In New York I had to pass through some mysterious side door to get a drink on Sunday. In Boston I was compelled to sit down to drink, whether it was Sunday or not. When I got to Missouri the law said I must stand up and drink. In Kansas I was obliged to make an affidavit and swear to it that I was sick with the blind staggers, or something of the kind, or I couldn't get a drop, and Nebraska assured me that it was a penitentiary offense to treat anybody. I expect to strike a state yet where they hang a man for thinking about a drink."

FOR a good Smoke or Chew call at ... GEO. F. STOCK'S.

From Centre Mills.

On last Friday between 11 and 12 o'clock a. m., the residence of Mr. Howard Houck, of Butler township, was burned. The fire originated from the flue of the bake oven and communicated to the outkitchen and from thence to the main building. Although the alarm was given as soon as possible, and a large number responding, yet the fire had gotten beyond control. By almost superhuman efforts the household things were carried from the burning building. The loss falls heavily on Mr. Houck who has the sympathy of this entire community. He is insured in the Liberty and Independent of Adams county for $1,002.83.

B. J. KENDALL CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt. THE NEW DISCOVERY.—have You heard your friends and neighbors talking about it. You may yourself be one of the many who know from personal experience just how good a thing it is. If you have ever tried it, you are one of its staunch friends, because the wonderful thing about it is, that when once given a trial, Dr. King's New Discovery ever after holds a place in the house. If you have never used it and should be afflicted with a cough, cold or any Throat, Lung or Chest trouble, secure a bottle at once and give it a fair trial. It is guaranteed every time, or money refunded. Trial Bottles Free at J. M. Huber's Drug Store. (6)

THIRTY-TWO cows were burned in a barn near Lowell, Mass., early Thursday morning.

MR. GLADSTONE has not relinquished his pastime of felling trees. He recently felled a fine walnut tree in his park.

A ROCKY MOUNTAIN CURE.—The druggists claim that people call daily for the new cure for constipation and sick headache, discovered by Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains. It is said to be Oregon grape root (a great remedy in the far west for those complaints) combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring on boiling water to draw out the strength. It sells at 50 cents a package and is called Lane's Family Medicine. (b)

A HERO OF SIX WARS.—Horatio Harriton Hughes, of Howard county, Mo., is a hero of six wars—the Iowa war against Big Neck Chief, the Black Hawk war, the Mormon war, the Florida war, in which he ranked as major-general, the Mexican war and the rebellion, in which he served for four years in the Confederate army. He was in more than forty battles, but was never wounded.

THOUSANDS POISONED.—In a recent work on Heart Disease, Dr. Franklin Miles—the noted specialist—gives many new and startling facts. Thousands of people are slowly poisoning themselves, weakening their hearts by the use of tea, coffee, tobacco and alcohol. These are Heart Whips, causing it to beat rapidly, thus gradually wearing it out, producing shortness of breath when exercising, pains in side and shoulder, hungry and faint spells. Finally heart failure and sudden death. For weakened and irritated hearts the press everywhere highly recommend the New Heart Cure discovered by Mr. Franklin Miles, which is for sale at J. Huber's. (e)

ONE interesting fact in connection with Cyrus Field's golden wedding was that the entire bridal party of 1840 was present.

DIRECTION OF THE WIND.—Straws, it is said, indicate the direction of the wind, and the statements of druggists concerning the sale of a remedy, indicate, in a marked degree, its popularity. A. G. McKee, an enterprising druggist of Middletown, Conn., writes the proprietors of Van Wert's Balsam for the Lungs as follows: Your Balsam has taken well here and given great satisfaction. I have just sold the last bottle of that I had on hand. Please send me at once four dozen large and eight dozen small. Trial size free. For sale by A. C. Musselman, Fairfield; D. A. Mickley, Cashtown; Calvin F. Lower, McKnightstown; R. Golden, Goldenville; E. Taylor, Bendersville; C. K. Harris, Aspers; George McMullin, Uriah; A. D. Spangler, East Berlin. b

HOLD IT TO THE LIGHT.—The man who tells you confidentially just what will cure your cold is prescribing Kemp's Balsam this year. In the preparation of this remarkable medicine for coughs and colds no expense is spared to combine only the best and purest ingredients. THE WONDERFUL TOWER.—The highest structure in the world is the Eiffel Tower at Paris, 1,000 feet high. But the great discovery of Dr. Franklin Miles is certain to tower far above it in promoting human happiness and health. This wonderful nerve medicine builds up wornout systems, cures fits, spasms, headache, nervous prostration, dizziness, sleeplessness, monthly pains, sexual troubles, etc. Mrs. John R. Miller, of Valparaiso, Ind., and J. D. Taylor, of Logansport, Ind., gained 20 pounds a month while taking it. JAY GOULD says his ambition is to be the richest man in the world.

THE FIRST STEP.—Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning, you are taking the first step into Nervous Prostration. You need a Nerve Tonic and in Electric Bitters you will find the exact remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal healthy condition. Surprising results follow the use of this great Nerve Tonic and Alterative. Your appetite returns, good digestion is restored, and the Liver and Kidneys resume healthy action. Try a bottle. IN 1266 a pig was burned at Fontaneyaux Roses, near Paris, for having eaten a child. In 1386 a judge of False condemned a sow to be mutilated and hanged for a similar offense. Three years later a horse was solemnly tried before the magistrate and condemned to death for having killed a man.

THEY tell a story of a woman up in Berkshire county who, in answer to the question of the census taker as to how many children she had, replied that she did not know. "What," said the enumerator, "you don't know how many children you have?" "No," said the woman. "Why, how do you account for that?" "Well, I had three to once, two to twice and one ever so many times."

DEATH OF A GOOD CITIZEN.—Mr. Henry Wirt died at his residence, in Hanover, on Tuesday evening, in the 64th year of his age. Deceased was long prominently connected with the directors of the Hanover Branch Railroad Company, the Hanover Saving Fund Society, and the Turnpike Companies of that section, as well as the Gettysburg National Bank, his cool and conservative judgment always having great weight. He also served as a Trustee of Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, and of the Theological Seminary there, and was the Treasurer of the Potomac Synod of the Reformed church. The funeral on Friday was very largely attended, a number of clergymen of the Reformed church in different parts of the state attending. Rev. Drs. Gerhart and Appel, and Rev. Mr. Bowman made very feeling and appropriate addresses. Rev. T. J. Barkley assisted the pastor at the grave.

The entire family of Henry Wirt, Sr., is now dead. Our neighbor, Dr. J. W. C. O'Neal, is the only surviving son-in-law, and Mrs. Henry Wirt, Jr., the only daughter-in-law: the latter had no children.

THE bonds of Sheriff-elect N. W. Stoner, Clerk of the Courts J. B. Carns and Register and Recorder Thad. O. Collins have been approved by the Court. Mr. Carns has appointed his predecessor, John H. Stable, Esq., as his deputy, and Mr. Collins, his predecessor, Jacob H. Wierman, Esq., his deputy. County Treasurer David Troxel's bond was approved this morning.

RAILROADS.—The Pennsylvania has obtained a charter for a railroad from Shippensburg to Mount Dallas, about 60 miles, with a capital of $2,500,000. This will give the company a route of its own from the Cumberland coal field, and thus get rid of the heavy wheel-toll paid to the Reading for the use of the Broad-Top. Col. W. W. Stewart has been engaged on the preliminary surveys.

The Western Maryland Railroad has been granted a charter for an extension of its road from this place to a point on the Harrisburg and Potomac road, near Harrisburg, making a connection with the Philadelphia and Reading system.

Two months in prison and a fine of $100 was the sentence which Henry W. Martin, of Littlestown, received for fradulently using the mails, of which he was recently found guilty in Philadelphia.

More of the 72nd Equity Suit.

The recommended decrees of the Master, Wm. Arch. McClean, Esq., in the Equity case, as to the location of the monument of the 72nd Regiment, were published last week, having been made public, by reason of notice given by the Master to counsel of parties interested, of his intention to file his report on the 15th inst. Exceptions to the report were filed by the Memorial Association, which were dismissed by the Master, and the report and all the papers were filed in Court yesterday. The report covers 65 pages. Briefly, it decides that the State Commission and representatives of the regiment have the right to locate the monument under the Act of 1887 and that the Memorial Association has no voice in such location. That a site was selected under the Act, 20 feet in rear of stone fence in the Bloody Angle, and that the location east of Hancock Avenue, 280 feet from the stone fence, was not selected in conformity with the Act. From the evidence and admission made by counsel, the 72nd Regiment is found to be engaged in battle at a position 20 feet from the stone fence. By the admission, the 72nd fought in a position about 80 feet from the stone fence and that from such position they "advanced fighting down to the stone wall, having men killed and wounded in the advance." The evidence of certain witnesses of the Memorial Association is ruled out as a contradiction of the admission and permission is refused the Memorial Association to withdraw the admission, by reason of the regiment having acted upon it. It is further found that should the admission have been allowed to be withdrawn that the evidence would have established the fact that the 72nd did a portion of their best fighting in and around a position 20 feet from the stone fence, and following such a finding is a description of the fight at the Bloody Angle, a resume gathered from the evidence. The recommended decrees that the monument be erected at position 20 feet from the stone fence and that the Memorial Association be enjoined from preventing such an erection, etc., complete the report. The next step in the case will be an argument of the exceptions before the Court.

COURT.—In Court yesterday the report of viewers to assess damages to Francis C. Ogden, from opening road in Franklin township from VanDyke's school-house to McKnightstown confirmed absolute, the amount being fixed at $160.

Exceptions to report of viewers to vacate and supply part of road in Hamiltonban township from O. F. Benner's to Mrs. M. V. Miller's ordered for argument.

Report of viewers of road in Freedom township from line of lands of Wm. Bigham and Geo. Buhrman to line of lands of Nicholas Miller and Mrs. Mary A. Weaver confirmed absolute, one-half of the damages to be paid by the county and the other by Mary A. and George Weaver.

Peddler's license was granted to Joseph Grollman, of Straban township.

Mrs. Annie L. Haverstock was granted benefit of the married woman's act.

CHURCH WEDDING.—A very pretty wedding took place in the Reformed church of this place at 12.30 p. m. Wednesday, the parties being Miss Dora H. Winebrenner, daughter of Mr. John Winebrenner, of this place, and Mr J. C. Chapman, of Middletown, Conn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. C. Horine, of Reading, brother-in-law of the bride, assisted by Rev. T. J. Barkley, the pastor. The ushers were Geo. J. Benner and J. L. Hill, Jr., Esqs., and Messrs. H. C. Picking and Chas. M. McCurdy. Miss Eva Danner rendered a wedding march on the organ, assisted by Prof. M. S. Eiker on the cornet. The bride was attired in traveling costume, and the happy couple took the 1 10 G. & H. train, followed with warmest wishes of their many friends

The party consisted of the following named sportsmen: John Hall, J. C. D. Lower, J. C. Thomas, John D. Kane, Noah Beamer, F. Tuckey, C. P. Arendt, E. J. Hall, J. F. Taylor, J. Andrew Kane, I. K. Arendt, L. Ramer, D. McCleary, E. McCleary, J. Koch, McC. Eaholtz and S. Hall. The successful shots were delivered by Samuel Hall, who succeeded in killing three bucks, one of them running at a distance of 145 yards, with a double-barreled shot gun; McC. Eaholtz killed a large doe and C. P. Arendt killed a buck, making five for the first week's work. Every deer hit was captured. The amount of small game is 46 pheasants and 135 rabbits. Hon. W. Howard Dicks was reported in last week's COMPILER" as being present and as having killed five deer. This was a mistake. He was not a member of this camp, as we now learn.

LIFE AND ADVENTURES
—OF—
LEWIS THE ROBBER.

His visits to Carlisle, Harrisburg, Newville, Doubling Gap, Shippensburg, Bedford, Bellefonte, Philadelphia, New York, Troy, and his many crimes in these places.

The early years of this century and for many years since, David Lewis has been spoken of as a desperado, and yet possessing qualities rarely discovered in a robber or a brigand.

HOLIDAY * SEASON

From the inquiry, and the general trend of our daily sales, we have convincing proofs of the near approach of the holiday times. We desire to call attention of all holiday purchasers to the great number of articles we now have in stock that are desirable for presents for all conditions of persons and suitable to every want of old, middle-aged or young. As we do not pay much attention to those fancy articles which in some stores are their chief attraction at this season we nevertheless are in a position to show a great many novelties in our regular lines of goods which were especially purchased as suitable to the "gift time" of the year, and we may say we have provided rather abundantly for the wants of our large number of customers, and the most important factors relating to this provision is that every article we offer is something of use as a part of apparel or adornment of either the person or the house and that we have no fancy Christmas prices on anything. We do not have to provide any additional profit for risk in not selling as every article we offer will be saleable after Christmas. As the — what to give—is the hardest possible question for many to answer we make a number of suggestions out of our stock which may be of use to you, however we cannot mention a fourth or give much description of anything in the limits of this advertisement. So call at our store and look through our stock.

Seasonable and Reasonable.

Will not those who intend to pay subscriptions ... please do so early? The turkey promised, and others not promised, would be welcome immediately.

All others who owe—and they are not a few by any means—should signalize the coming of a new year by making "the printer" happy as well as all others who serve and always try to please them. To tell the real truth, our need of cash is now the most pressing. Do something—or say you can't.

Good Things for the Season.

DOUGHNUTS.—One cup of sugar, three cups of flour, a piece of butter the size of an egg, one cup of milk, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of mace; mix together; roll out, cut in shape and fry in hot lard.

FARMER'S CAKE.—Two eggs, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of sour cream, one teaspoonful of soda, two cupfuls of flour; flavor with the grated rind of one lemon.

HONEY CAKES.—Take a quart of strained honey, half a pound of fresh butter, and a small teaspoonful of pearl of ash, dissolved in a little milk. Add as much sifted flour as will make stiff paste. Work well together. Roll out half an inch thick. Cut into cakes. Lay on buttered tins, and bake in a hot oven.

TEA CAKES.—One cupful of half butter and half lard, or all butter, two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of sour milk, one half teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a little vanilla extract. After putting all the ingredients together flour it to roll; cut out with a fine cake-cutter; sift sugar over the top of each one, and bake.

DUNDEE CAKE.—Dry and sift one pound of flour, rub into it half a pound of fresh butter, add half a pound of sifted sugar, half a pound of currants and a few pounded almonds. Mix all; then add a quarter pound of citron cut into strips and a gill of boiling milk, and finally the yolks and whites of three eggs beaten separately. Beat this mixture with a fork for five minutes, and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

MINCE PIE.—Take five pounds of beef; boil, chop fine with three pounds of suet; seed four pounds of raisins, wash four pounds of currants, slice a pound of citron, chop four quarts of apples. Put in a saucepan, with cinnamon, cloves, ginger, nutmeg, the juice of two lemons, one teaspoonful of pepper and two pounds of sugar. Pour over all a quart of cider, one pint of molasses and a teacup of melted butter. Bake in a rich crust without tops, then bake a crust of puff paste and lay on.

PRUNE WHIP.—Stew one-half pound of prunes with one-quarter of a pound of white sugar. When cold, or nearly cold, put them in an ordinary pudding dish with a very little of the syrup. Beat the whites of five eggs and pour over the prunes. Bake for a few minutes in a slow oven until the eggs are "set." Let the dish cool, and just before serving spread on the top half a pint of whipped cream. The cream should be sweetened with a tablespoonful of white sugar before it is whipped to a stiff froth. This is a delicious dessert, and will be appreciated by any one tired of the usual pudding and pie routine.

ORANGE TART.—Take four sweet oranges, three ounces of loaf-sugar, two eggs, one ounce of butter, two slices of thin bread or plain cake and a little milk. Butter a pie dish and lay in the bread, previously soaked with milk. Wipe the oranges and rub the lumps of sugar over the outside of the rind, to obtain the aromatic flavor which it yields, then remove all the white peel, and pound the pulp with the sugar, keeping back the pips; add the yolks of the eggs, also the butter, slightly melted; mix thoroughly and pour over the bread. Whip the whites of the eggs to a firm froth, add a little sugar, pile roughly on the top of the orange mixture, and bake in a moderately hot oven to a pale brown color. Sift a little white sugar over, and serve hot.

SWISS CREAM is thus prepared: Have ready a cake tin; measuring two and a half inches deep. In this ring bake some rich sponge cake mixture—the ordinary sponge cake batter, with a quarter pound of butter to four eggs, is rich enough—and when done turn out very carefully into a nice china or glass dish; brush the cake ring over with vanilla glace, and, when quite cold, fill the centre with a high mound of stiffy whipped cream, flavored very delicately with vanilla. Ornament the top of the cream with candied cherries, cut in tiny pieces and arrange round the base a border of small, fresh, green leaves.

Safe Advice for Every Winter.

Eggs in winter are usually high because they are scarce, but the cost of eggs in winter is equally as great in proportion to prices obtained, as those laid in summer, for not only must a larger share of food be given in the cold season, in order to povide the animal heat of the fowls, and to form the eggs, but more care and labor must also be given, hence it is not always true that a greater profit is derived in winter than in the summer season. When on the range the hens pick up a large portion of their food, and need but little assistance in the shape of grain, the eggs being nearly all profit, but in the winter eggs are necessarily high because the cost of production is greater.

Fewer mistakes result in the summer but in winter the best care that may be given sometimes results unfavorably. The simple matter of omitting to close a knot-hole, through which a stream of cold air flows in over the fowls, may blast all the anticipations of the poultry man, and the feeding of food, almost wholly carbonaceous in quality and containing but little nitrogenous or mineral matter, though well supplying the fowls so far as their individual desires are concerned, may be so lacking in the essential constituents of egg production as to render the hens unproductive, and it is safe to say, and many are familiar with the fact that hens in the best of condition, fat, in full plumage, and healthy in every respect, produce no eggs, due to surplus fat, and an excess of carbonaceous food. Corn is not a proper food for fowls when given as an exclusive food, nor is the feeding of any kind of grain conductive to egg production, when such is given exclusively as all grains are deficient in lime and mineral matter.

It is not here suggested that corn be discarded, for that would create a rebellion, but it is urged that corn be fed in connection with a variety. Finely chopped clover hay, scalded, is a more complete food than grain, but grain is beneficial when fed in connection with the clover. Meat, milk, potatoes, turnips, and even ensilage, provide more egg element than any kind of grain that can be given. More important than breed or feed (which is claiming much) is exercise. The hen that is kept busily at work, and which aims to secure her food by scratching for it, will always be the one that lays, and to secure this activity provide cut straw, leaves, or some other litter, and scatter a small quantity of millet seed (or wheat) therein, and the hens will keep in exercise and consequently in health and laying condition.

But there is another point. If it costs more for labor and care in winter there is often a time when this labor and care can be given with but little cost, as during some periods in winter no other work can be done. The management of a flock in winter should ... prices obtained will offer a large profit in such cases. It is the labor saved—applied that brings in the returns, and if it can be applied to poultry better than to animals it should be so done. There never was a time when strictly fresh eggs were not in demand, and no amount of limed or preserved eggs can conflict with the fresh ones.

To make the most of prices the poultry man should seek his customers, let them know he has something better than is on the market, and aim to get even more than is offered. If any one thinks this is difficult let him go into the market and attempt to buy a dozen eggs known to be strictly fresh, and all doubts will be removed. Fresh eggs are never plentiful, and are always saleable at good prices at all seasons.

Eggs in winter means that to procure them the fowls must be kept warm, must not be overfed, must be made to exercise, must be guarded against disease, and must be of some breed possessing the qualities desired. If a profit is expected one must not object to doing any kind of necessary work and at all times. The main essential is warmth, for no matter how well the fowls may be fed they will not lay if the poultry house is damp, cold, and uncomfortable. They love light, warmth and cleanliness, and can only give a profit when the conditions for so doing are in harmony with the object, and many failures that are attributed to the fowls, are readily due to the faults and oversight of their owners.

London's Great Sewers.

DISPOSAL OF THE SEWAGE ON THE LAND AND IN THE SEA.

Readers of the COMPILER, no doubt, often wonder what becomes of the immense mass of sewage gathered by the sewers of the world's greatest metropolis. The following extract from an article in the Century by Albert Shaw explains:

The prime occasion for the establishment of the [London] metropolitan board in 1855 was the need of main sewers. Upon this work of a general drainage system the board had spent $35,000,000 from 1856 to 1888. This is apart from the cost of the network of smaller sewers that ramify the parishes, and that have been built by the vestries and parish boards.

The natural drain for the whole region is, of course, the Thames; but the time had come when a free discharge at intervals into the river was intolerable. Long before this the stream would have been filled with a putrid, plague-generating mass of sludge, to the destruction of navigation and commerce as well as of life. Main sewer tunnels, following either bank, carry the sewage to a point some fifteen miles below the city, where it meets a strong tidal movement. Filtration works have been erected there at vast expense. It has been hoped that the compressed sludge, of which there are several thousand tons per day, can all eventually be disposed of as a manure; but hitherto it has been necessary to barge much of it out to sea, large vessels having been built for that purpose. The experimental work is far from completed, and the new council will find the problem of sewage disposal both expensive and vexatious. A royal commission appointed for that purpose in 1882 reported in 1884 upon this question. All the large cities of Europe have since then been watching the experiments at London and hoping that a solution might be found that would be applicable elsewhere.

The royal commissioners found the discharge of crude sewage objectionable at any point on the Thames estuary, on both sanitary and navigation grounds, and could not approve, as a permanent measure, the discharge into the river of the impure liquid after the process of deposition or precipitation of the solid material. The only final remedy they could advise for the farther purification of this liquid was its application to land. It now remains for the County Council to add sewage farms to its present means for the disposal of the London drainage and the protection of the Thames. Sir Robert Rawlinson in an elaborate paper on "London Sewerage and Sewage" has lately declared that the entire volume of that sewage is now worth $8,750,000 a year for manurial purposes, and that the direct irrigation of land is the true system for the London authorities to adopt. London is now a well-sewered city; and this great sanitary reform has reduced the death rate most notably.

Horrible Experience at Sea.

THE CAPTAIN AND TWO OTHERS KILLED.—FOUR HUNDRED CATTLE PERISH.

The Atlantic Transport Line steamship Maryland, which sailed from Baltimore November 27 for Avonmouth Docks and London, arrived in the Delaware Breakwater Saturday afternoon with her flag at halfmast, the body of her dead master, Capt. Alfred H. Lockhurst, on board, two others reported buried at sea, Chief Officer Horace Lloyd with leg broken and nearly every man on board more or less injured.

The Maryland encountered the fearful hurricane which swept the Atlantic coast on the 1st instant with fearful results. On that date the Maryland, at the height of the hurricane, was boarded by a terrible sea, which dashed those on deck in all directions and swept everything movable overboard. At the time the Maryland encountered the hurricane she was 600 miles off shore. A heavy sea on the afternoon of December 1 carried away the bridge. At the time Captain Luckhurst was on the bridge and it was supposed by the crew that he had been washed overboard, but on the second day afterwards his body was found on top of the galley, which is situated just aft of the bridge, the remains being completely hidden under the wreckage, pieces of iron, etc. The captain was instantly killed, as the scalp was torn from his head and his back broken. After the storm had subsided the body of George Tyler, the cook's boy, was found under the wreckage with the head severed from the body. Boatswain Joseph Dogwell was also killed.

Second Officer Wm. Horman brought the vessel into Delaware Breakwater. There were 526 head of cattle on the Maryland when she sailed from Baltimore. It was necessary to close the hatches to keep the water out of the hold. This had a disastrous effect on the live stock, many being smothered to death. Two hundred dead animals were thrown into the sea and about two hundred were dead in the hold when harbor was reached, but the health authorities would not allow them to be thrown overboard. They were subsequently taken to a glue factory.

THERE are about 45,000,000 square miles of land on the globe, of which Europe has 4,000,000, America 16,000,000, Asia 9,000,000, Africa 12,000,000, and Australia and the rest 3,000,000.

Good News!

No one, who is willing to adopt the right course, need be long afflicted with boils, carbuncles, pimples, or other cutaneous eruptions. These are the results of Nature's efforts to expel poisonous and effete matter from the blood, and show plainly that the system is ridding itself through the skin of impurities which it was the legitimate work of the liver and kidneys to remove. To restore these organs to their proper functions, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the medicine required. That no other blood-purifier can compare with it, thousands testify who have gained from the tyranny of depraved blood by the use of this medicine.

"For nine years I was afflicted with a skin disease that did not yield to any remedy until a friend advised me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. With the use of this medicine the complaint disappeared. It is my belief that no other blood medicine could have effected so rapid and complete a cure."—Andres D. Garcia, C. Victoria, Tamaulipas, Mexico.

"My face, for years, was covered with pimples and humors, for which I could find no remedy till I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Three bottles of this great blood medicine effected a thorough cure. I confidently recommend it to all suffering from similar troubles."—M. Parker, Concord, Vt.

"Some lives are like Horse Shoes the more worn the brighter." Busy wives who use SAPOLIO never seem to grow old. Try a cake...

A complete wreck of domestic happiness has often resulted from ... washed dishes, from an unclean kitchen, or from trifles which ... light as air. But by these things a man often judges of his ... devotion to her family, and charges her with general neglect ... he finds her careless in these particulars. Many a home owes ... part of its thrifty neatness and its consequent happiness to SAPOLIO.

Grocers often substitute cheaper goods for SAPOLIO, to make a ... profit. Send back such articles, and insist on having just what ... ordered.

"Boss wouldn't blanket him in the stable. Said it wasn't no use."
